FARMS are rapid food distributions held in strategically placed locations in every county the SLAFB serves to provide a reliable source of food to neighbors in areas that lack pantry access points. FARMS connect communities to needed food assistance and additional resources to help increase food security and alleviate financial hardships by allowing money that would have been spent on food to be spent on other necessities. These are set-up as drive-thru distributions where neighbors stay in their vehicles and volunteers place items inside as neighbors drive through the distribution.
